A BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF ENGLISH PRIMARY AUXILIARY VERBS

A PAPER

BY

MARIYAM DAMANIK
Reg. No. 062202080

DIPLOMA III ENGLISH STUDY PROGRAM
FACULTY OF LETTERS
UNIVERSITY OF SUMATERA UTARA
MEDAN
2009
Approved by

Supervisor

Drs. M. Syafi’i Siregar, MA
NIP: 131570497
Submitted to Faculty of Letters University of Sumatera Utara
In partial fulfillment of the requirements for DIPLOMA (D-III) in English.

Approved by

Head of Program Study

Dra. Syahyar Hanum, DPFE
NIP: 130702287
Approved by the Diploma III of English Study Program,
Faculty of Letters, University of Sumatera Utara
As a paper for the Diploma (D-III) examination.
Accepted by the Boards of Examiner in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the D-III Examination of the Diploma III of English Study Program, Faculty of Letters, University of Sumatera Utara.

The examination is held on..................

Faculty of Letters, University of Sumatera Utara

Dean,

Drs. Syaifuddin, M. A, Ph. D
NIP: 132098531

Board of Examiner and Reader:
Examiner : Drs. M. Syafi’i Siregar, MA.
Reader : Dra. Persadanta Br Karo
AUTHOR’S DECLARATION

I am, MARIYAM DAMANIK, to declare that I am the sole author of this paper. Except where reference is made in the text of this paper, this paper contains no material published elsewhere or extracted in whole or in part from a paper by paper which I have qualified for or awarded another degree.

No other person’s work has been used without due acknowledgement in the main text of the paper. This paper has not been submitted for the award of another degree in any tertiary education.

Signed :

Date :
COPYRIGHT DECLARATION

NAME : MARIYAM DAMANIK

TITLE THIS PAPER : A BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF ENGLISH PRIMARY AUXILIARY VERBS

QUALIFICATION : D-III/ AHLI MADYA

STUDY PROGRAM : ENGLISH

I am willing that my paper should be available for reproduction at the discretion of the librarian of the Diploma III English Department Faculty of Letters USU on the understanding the users are made aware of their obligation under law of the Republic of Indonesia.

Signed :

Date :
ABSTRAK

Auxiliary verbs adalah kata kerja bantu yang terletak sebelum kata kerja dasar untuk membentuk tense (bentuk waktu), voice (ragam grammatical) dan lain-lainnya. Auxiliary verbs juga disebut special verbs or anomalous verbs (kata kerja menyimpang) karena fungsi atau penggunaan dari kata-kata kerja bantu tersebut khusus dan sangat berlainan (menyimpang) dengan fungsi atau kegunaan kata kerja yang biasanya. Salah satu jenis auxiliary verbs adalah Primary Auxiliary Verbs. Primary Auxiliary Verbs adalah kata kerja bantu yang sering muncul didalam setiap kalimat dalam Bahasa Inggris. Ada tiga bentuk Primary Auxiliary Verbs yaitu “to be” yaitu is, am, are, was, were. “to have” yaitu have, has, had dan “to do” yaitu do, does, did. Ketiga bentuk ini memiliki fungsi masing-masing. Namun, bentuk-bentuk ini bisa berfungsi sebagai kata kerja dasar (main verb) atau kata kerja bantu (auxiliary verb). Dalam kertas karya ini, penulis mengangkat judul “A Brief Description of English Primary Auxiliary Verbs” untuk memerikan bentuk dan penggunaan primary auxiliary verbs dalam struktur bahasa Inggris. Metode yang digunakan dalam kertas karya ini adalah metode kepustakaan atau library research dan membaca buku-buku yang mendukung topik ini. Dengan penjelasan tentang primary auxiliary verbs ini, penulis berharap kertas karya ini dapat memberikan manfaat bagi setiap orang ingin mempelajari struktur atau grammar dalam Bahasa Inggris.
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

In the name of Allah SWT, The Beneficient and The Merciful. Praise be to Allah. Firstly I would like to thank and praise to Allah SWT for blessing and guidance during the process of completing this paper to finish my study in Diploma III English Study Program, Faculty of Letters, University of Sumatera Utara.

My deep love and special gratitude are also to my beloved parents, Sakiman Damanik and Sabariah Sinaga for teaching me many things, my beloved sisters, Juliani Damanik and Sarmaidah Damanik, and my beloved brothers, Romanda Damanik and Johanda Damanik; and all my relatives who have patiently given me their moral and financial, support, advice, love and pray that I can accomplish my study.

My sincere thanks are expressed to my supervisor Drs. M.Syafi’i Siregar, MA. Who has spent his precious time to provide me with guidance and suggestion during the process of writing this paper, and to Dra. Persadanta Br. Karo who as my reader.

I also thank to the Head of Diploma III English Program Study, Dra. Syahyar Hanum, DPFE. The Dean of Faculty of Letters University of Sumatera Utara, Drs. Syaifuddin MA, Ph.D. I also express my sincere gratitude to all my lecturers for their valuable knowledge, guidance, and advice during my study.
I would like to express my special thanks to my best friend Ade Ikhwan Syahputra who gives suggestion and advice and is always ready to help me to find the references, to my lovely friends Syaidati Ifdari, Ermila Sari Sikumbang, Selvi Monika, Darlina Sari Dewi Harahap, Dinda Artika, Maysarah, and who usual give suggestion and help me when I was in difficult condition.

I would like to thank to all my classmates of group A and B. I am also grateful to all my juniors in Diploma III Study Program, and to all the members of SOLIDAS.

Finally, as the writer I would like to admit that my paper may be far from perfect. Therefore, I open my hands to the constructive critics and suggestion.

Medan, 2009

The Writer

Mariyam Damanik
Reg. No. 062202080
TABLE OF CONTENTS

AUTHOR'S DECLARATION
COPYRIGHT DECLARATION

ABSTRACT..................................................................................................................i
ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS...........................................................................................ii
TABLE OF CONTENTS............................................................................................iv

1. INTRODUCTION.....................................................................................................1
   1.1 The Background of Study.............................................................................1
   1.2 The Scope of Study.....................................................................................2
   1.3 The Objective of Study..............................................................................2
   1.4 The Significance of Study..........................................................................2
   1.5 The Method of Study..................................................................................3

2. A BRIEF DEFINITION OF ENGLISH PRIMARY AUXILIARY
   VERBS....................................................................................................................4
   2.1 Definition of Auxiliary Verb.......................................................................4
   2.2 Kinds of Auxiliary Verb.............................................................................5

3. A BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF ENGLISH PRIMARY AUXILIARY
   VERBS....................................................................................................................6
   3.1 Types and Uses of Primary Auxiliary Verbs.............................................6
      3.1.1 Primary Auxiliary Verb “Be”.............................................................7
      3.1.2 Primary Auxiliary Verb “Have”.......................................................13
      3.1.3 Primary Auxiliary Verb “Do”............................................................17
4. CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION………………………………..23

4.1 Conclusion………………………………………………………....23

4.2 Suggestion………………………………………………………....25

BIBLIOGRAPHY
CHAPTER I

INTRODUCTION

1.1 The Background of Study

Language is a very important means of communication and it is used as a primary means of communication in the society. In the daily life, a language enables people to express the ideas and allows to live and cooperates with other people. In addition, language is not only a form of communication, but it is also a form of social status. It means that inability to use language well can affect someone’s status, even alter her/his personality.

Nowadays, since English is as an international language, a number of scientists, teachers, journalists, etc realize that they need to study language more deeply, especially in grammar. Grammar makes the speakers and writers have good sentences because it tells about the structure and the rule of the language. The largest unit of grammar is a sentence, and one of the important unit in composing a sentence is primary auxiliary verbs.

In this paper, the writer attempts to explain about English primary auxiliary verbs because the primary auxiliary verbs are always used together with the main verbs to give a grammatical information and therefore it can add extra meaning to a sentence which is not given by the main verbs. So, this paper is written to inform the people about the types and the use of primary auxiliary verbs.
1.2 The Scope of Study

The scope of study in this paper are:

a. The definition of auxiliary verb.

b. The types and uses of the primary auxiliary verb.

1.3 The Objective of Study

There are four major purposes of, such as:

a. To give an adequate information of primary auxiliary verb.

b. To be a reference for the students in learning English grammar.

c. To inform the people all about the primary auxiliary verbs.

d. To enrich students’ knowledge in English grammar.

1.4 The Significance of Study

This paper is written to explain all about the primary auxiliary verbs, and the writer expects it will give some significances for the readers, such as:

a. To be a reference for the readers who want to learn about English grammar especially the primary auxiliary verbs.

b. To increase the quality of studying English grammar.

c. To add the knowledge about the uses of primary auxiliary verb.
1.5 The Method of Study

In making this paper, the writer uses the library research as a method in completing this paper. By reading some books which have relation to the topic is a really help to the writer in finishing the work.
CHAPTER II

A BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF ENGLISH AUXILIARY VERBS

2.1 Definition of Auxiliary Verb

In linguistic, an auxiliary verb (also called helping verb) is a verb functioning to give further semantic or syntactic information about the main verb (non-auxiliary verb) following it. In English, every clause consists of a main verb and optionally one or more auxiliary verbs. For examples, have written (one auxiliary verb), and have been written (two auxiliary verbs).

There is a syntactic difference between an auxiliary verb and a main verb; that is, each has a different grammatical function within a sentence. In English, there are some verbs that can act either as auxiliary or main verb, such as be (”I am writing a letter” vs “I am a postman”) and have (”I have a letter” vs “I have written a letter.”). In the case of be, it is sometimes ambiguous whether it is auxiliary or not; for example, “The ice cream was melted” could mean either “Someone melted the ice cream.” In which case melt would be the main verb or “the ice cream was mostly liquid.” In which case be would be the main verb.
2.2 Kinds of Auxiliary Verbs

All auxiliary verbs are used with a main verb. They have no meaning on their own. They are necessary for the grammatical structure of a sentence. They “help” the main verb (which has the real meaning). In English, they can be divided into three groups, they are:

1. Primary auxiliary verbs, used mainly to change the tense or voice of the main verb, and in making questions and negatives.

2. Modal auxiliary verbs, used to change the “mood” of the main verb.

3. Semi-modal verbs, these are called “semi-modals” because they are partly like modal auxiliary verbs and partly like main verbs.
CHAPTER III

A BRIEF DESCRIPTION OF ENGLISH PRIMARY AUXILIARY VERBS

The primary auxiliary verbs are “to be”, “to have”, “to do”. Primary auxiliary verbs are formed by conjugation into different forms: is, am, are, was, were, have, has, had, do, does, did.

The primary auxiliary verbs are used together with a main verb to give the grammatical information and therefore they add an extra meaning to a sentence which is not given by the main verb. In English, the extra meaning of auxiliary verbs alter the basic form of the main verb to have one or more of the following functions: passive, progressive, negative statements, ask questions, etc.

3.1 Types and Uses of Primary Auxiliary Verbs

Some sentences have more than one verb. They have a main verb- the verb that shows the main action or state of being. They also have an auxiliary verb because an auxiliary verb helps people to know when the action of the verb happened in the tense of the verb.

There are three types of primary auxiliary verbs, they are: to be, to have, and to do. They are irregular verb and can be used as main verbs. The verbs “to be” and “to have” are the most commonly used auxiliary verbs and work alongside the main verbs in any statement.
3.1.1 Primary Auxiliary Verb “Be”

A. Be as a Main Verb

Be is the basic form of the verb which is usually used in the forms of is, am, are, was, were. Was and were are the past tense form of be. Was is used for the singular form and were is used for the plural form.

For example:

- I was at work before 8 o’clock this morning.
- You were there much earlier than any of us.
- Mr. Ruis was planning to take his vacation in July.
- You and I are best friends.

As a main verb, be- the copula- is the most important copula verb in English. Every English sentence must have a verb and it is true even for short sentences. In this case, be has function as the “main verb” in a sentence not as an auxiliary verb.

These are some functions of be as a main verb, they are:

1. Be is the verb normally used to denote the existence of, or to give information about a person or thing.

For example:

- Gold is metal.
- Rina is a student.
- The dog is in the garden.
- The roads were rough and narrow.
- Peter was tall.
2. Be is used to express the physical or mental condition

For example:
- He was excited.
- I am very sad.
- They are unhappy.

3. With certain adjectives, e.g. quite/noisy, good/bad, wise/foolish, it is possible to use the continuous tense form of be, e.g. Mira is being foolish, to imply that the subject is showing this quality at this time. Similarly, “The children are being quite” means that they are playing quietly now, but “the children are quite” might mean that they usually play quite.

Other adjectives include:

- Annoying            generous/mean
- Clever/stupid     helpful/unhelpful
- Difficult          mysterious
- Formal            polite
- Funny             optimistic/pessimistic

With some of those, the continuous form may imply that the subject is deliberately acting in this way:

For example:

- She is just being polite probably means that she is only pretending to admire you.
- You are being stupid may mean you are not trying to understand.

- He is being funny usually means he is only joking.

  Don’t believe him.

4. Be is used for age

   For example:

   - How old are you? I am 21 years old.

   - How old is the tower? It is 200 years old.

5. Size and weight are expressed by be

   For example:

   - How tall are you?
   - What is your weight?
   - How high are you now?

6. Be is used for prices

   For example:

   - How much is this melon?

   - How much are these shirts?

B. Be as an Auxiliary Verb

   As an auxiliary verb, be has some grammatical functions, they are:
1. To make Present Progressive (be + ing – participle)

The Present Progressive Tense is formed by two verbs; BE (is/am/are) and the verb –ING. In present progressive, BE is an auxiliary verb and its has no meaning, but it must be used in present progressive form.

The Present Progressive describes activities or events in progress at a particular time, usually for a limited amount of time. It describes events that are currently in progress, or event that are going to take place in the future and about which the speaker feels quite certain.

- Present Progressive describing an event in progress.
  For example:
  - I am looking for an employee.
  - She is studying English grammar.

- Present Progressive with future time
  For example: - She is coming back tomorrow.
  - I am going with him next week.

2. To make passive voice (be + past – participle)

Most passive constructions are formed with the auxiliary be and a past – participle, but some past participles are irregular verbs. The form of passive:

be + PAST PARTICIPLE
For example:

- He is appointed as a head of department.
- The package was mailed by Maryam.
- We are helped by the teacher.
- This class is thought by John Smith (Irregular Verb)

3. Be + infinitive

   Be + infinitive construction is extremely important and can be used in the following ways:

   a. To convey orders or instructions.

   For example:

   - No one is to leave this building without the permission of the police.
   (No one must leave).
   - He is to stay here till we return. (He must stay).

   b. To convey a plan.

   For example:

   - She is to be married next month.
   - The expedition is to start in a week's time.

4. Was/were + infinitive can express an idea of destiny.
For example:

- They said goodbye, little knowing than they were never to meet again.
  (were destined never to meet)

- He received a blow on the head. It didn’t worry him at the time but it was to be very troublesome later.

5. Be about + infinitive expresses the immediate future.

For example: They are about to start. (They are just going to start/ They are on the point of starting).

Just can be added to make the future even more immediate.

For example:

- They are just about to leave.

- He was just about to dive when he saw the shark.

Be on the point of + verb-ing has the same meaning as be about + infinitive, but is a shade more immediate.

For example:

- They are on the point of buying the tickets.
- She is on the point of doing her homework.

3.1.2 Primary Auxiliary Verb “Have”

A. Have as a Main Verb

As a transitive (a verb is used with a direct object) main verb, have is also as common as the most common lexical verbs in English. Have is the most common in conversation. There are two types of have: has and had. Has is used for the singular form (he, she, it) except for I subject that uses have. Had is used for all subject in the past form of have. The main verb have can be used with many different meanings, for example:

- Showing physical possession

  For example: - One in three of these families has two cars.
  - I have many story books.
  - She has many friends.

- Describing eating or drinking

  For example: - I have lunch at half past one.
  - I have dinner at seven o’clock.

- Telling family connections

  For example: - She had a husband and child.
  - I have two beautiful cousins.
• Showing where something exists

For example: - It would be nice to have a young person.

- it is nice to have a large house.

• Linking a person to an abstract quality

For example: - I hope she has fun.

- I hope you have a good time on your trip.

• Showing that someone causes something to be done

For example: - Maybe you should have it dyed black as well.

- He has the watchmaker to service his watch.

In addition, the verb have occurs as part of the semi-modal have to (meaning must).

For example: I will have to blank it out.

B. Have as an Auxiliary Verb

Forms of the verb to have are used to create tenses known as The Present Perfect and Past Perfect. The perfect tenses indicate that something has happened in the past; the present perfect indicates that something happened and might be continuing to happen. The past perfect indicates that something happened prior to something else happening.
For example:

- I have written a letter to you. (Present Perfect)
- He had left when we arrived. (Past Perfect)
- When my brother arrived, I had painted my car. (Past Perfect)

To have is also in combination with other modal verbs to express probability and possibility in the past.

- As an affirmative statement, to have can express how certain we are that something happened (when combined with an appropriate modal + have + a past participle).

  For example:
  - They may have voted already.
  - Ririn might have known about the gifts.
  - Michael must have left already.

- As a negative statement, a modal is combined with not + have + a past participle to express how certain we are that something did not happen. For example:

  - Michael might not have known about the gifts.
  - I may not have been there at the time of the crime.
• To ask about possibility or probability in the past, a modal is combined with the subject + have + past participle.

For example: Could Michael have known about the gifts?

• For short answer, a modal is combined with have.

For example: Did Michael know about this? "I don’t know. He may have.

To have (sometimes combined with to get) is used to express a logical inference.

For example: - It is been raining all week; the basement has to be flooded by now.
- He hit his head on the doorway. He has got to be over seven feet tall.

Have is often combined with an infinitive to form an auxiliary whose meaning is similar to “must”.

For example: - I have to have a car like that!!
- She has to pay her own tuition at college.

3.1.3 Primary Auxiliary Verb “Do”

A. Do as a Main Verb

Do is usually used in the form of do, does, did. Do is used for I, we, you, and they subject. Does is used for the third person singular (he, she, it) and did is used for all subject in the past form of do. For example:

- Do you work everyday, don’t you?
- I do not study English everyday.
- Doesn’t he speak English everyday?
- Did he go to Malang last week?

Do is also functioned as a main verb in transitive. As a main verb in transitive (a verb is used with direct object) constructions, do has an activity meaning. It can take a direct object. For example: In that moment Albert Einstein did a wonderful thing. However, do more commonly combine with a noun phrase to form idiomatic expressions such as do the job, do the dishes, do some work, do the wash, do your hair.

For example:

- It does the job. It’s not a bad little thing.
- I am used to it. I do the dishes every day.

1. Main verb *do as a transitive pro-verb

Do is also commonly functions as a pro-verb. Pro-verb do is especially common in conversation. It often combines with it, this/that, or so.

For example:

- I didn’t do it.
- Well that’s why he did it.
That really hurts my ears when you do that.

2. Main verb do as an intransitive pro-verb

In conversation after an auxiliary verb, do as an intransitive (a verb is used without a direct object) pro-verb provides an alternative to ellipsis.

For example:

A: No, no signs of him resigning.

B: Well, kicked him out.

A: They should have done, but they won’t.

done = kicked him out

B. Do as an Auxiliary Verb

As an auxiliary verb, do has some grammatical functions, they are:

1. Do may be functioned as an auxiliary to express the negative and to ask questions in the Simple Present Tense. (Does, however, is substituted for the third person, singular subject in the present tense. The Past Tense did works with all persons, singular and plural).

For example:

- I don’t study at night.

- She doesn’t work here anymore.

- Does she work here?
- Do you attend this class?

2. These verbs also work as “short answers” with the main verb omitted.

   For example:

   - Does she work here? No, she doesn’t.
   - Do you like me? Yes, I do.

3. Forms of do are useful in expressing similarity and differences in conjunction with so and neither.

   For example:

   - He drives faster than I do.
   - My wife hates spinach and so does my son.
   - My wife doesn’t like spinach, neither do I.

4. Do is also helpful because it means you don’t have to repeat the verb.

   For example:

   - Harry excelled in language studies; so did his brother.
   - Rini studies as hard as her sister does.

5. Emphatic Do

   Emphatic do occurs as an auxiliary verb in a clause that is not negated and is not question. It is used to emphasize that the meaning of the main verb is positive.

Emphatic do has many uses in English, they are:

a. To add emphasis to an entire sentence

   For example: “He does like spinach. He really does!”

b. To add emphasis to an imperative

   For example: “Do come in.” (actually softens the command)

c. To add emphasis to a frequency adverb

   For example:
   - He never did understand his father.
   - She always does manage to hurt her mother’s feeling.

d. To contradict a negative statement

   For example: “You didn’t do your homework, did you? Oh, but I did finish it.”

e. To ask clarifying question about a previous negative statement.

   For example: *“I didn’t take the tools. Then who did take the tools?”*

f. To indicate a strong concession
For example: “Although Michael denied any wrong-doing, they did return some of the gifts.”

6. Auxiliary do as a pro-verb

Like main verb do, auxiliary verb do can act as a pro-verb. It is used in both positive and negative clauses.

For example:

- He doesn’t even know you. He does!
- I think his mom wants him to come back but his dad doesn’t.

7. Auxiliary do in question tags.

Do has also function as an auxiliary in question tags.

For example:

- But Fanny looked after you, didn’t she?
- This delay solves nothing, does it?
- He lives here, doesn’t he?
- He loved you, didn’t he?

This construction is obviously related to do that expresses negatives and ask questions. It occurs where the preceding main verb (underlined above) has no auxiliary.
8. Do + imperative makes a request or invitation more persuasive.

For example:

- Do come with us. (more persuasive than come with us)
- Do help me, please.
- Do work a little harder.

9. It can similarly be used as an approving or encouraging affirmative answer to someone asking for approval of, or permission to do some action.

For example: “Shall I write to him? Yes, do or Do alone.”
CHAPTER IV

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

4.1 CONCLUSION

Having explained about the primary auxiliary verbs in accordance with opinions of some English grammarians, I can take the conclusion that there are some major points of primary auxiliary verb, they are:

- There are three kinds of auxiliary verbs, they are:

  a. Primary auxiliary verbs (do, have, be).

  b. Modal auxiliary verbs (shall, should, will, would, may, might, ought to, can, could).

  c. Semi-modal verbs (need, dare, used to).

- The three primary verbs – do, have, be—can serve as both main verb and auxiliary verbs. They differ, however, in their specific main and auxiliary functions.

- Be

  - As a copula (main verb), be is the most common copular verb in English.

  - As an auxiliary verb, be marks progressive aspect and passive voice.
- Have

  - As a main verb, have is one of the most common lexical verbs in English.

  - As an auxiliary verb, have marks perfect aspect.

- Do

  - As a main verb, do is a general transitive verb of action (e.g. do some works).

  - As a main verb, do can also function as a transitive pro-verb (do it, do that).

  - As an auxiliary verb, do is used in the construction for forming negation and questions (e.g. Didn’t you know?).

  - Auxiliary do is also used for emphatic meaning (e.g. Oh do shut up!).
4.2 SUGGESTION

In writing this paper, the writer wants to offer these following suggestions in order to understand further about the types and functions of primary auxiliary verb.

1. In order to know more about the types and functions of primary auxiliary verb for those who are studying English.

2. This paper could hopefully be a reference to know more about primary auxiliary verb as well as its functions.

3. Students should be encourage to read English books so that they become more familiar with primary auxiliary verb.
BIBLIOGRAPHY

http://www.englishclub.com