I. INTRODUCTION

1.1 Background of the Study

Hatred is an angry feeling of extreme dislike for someone or something. (Longman Dictionary of Contemporary English, 1995:653). Meanwhile in Merriam-Webster's collegiate dictionary, hatred is extremely strong word, but it often slips off out tongue without thinking that it might offend someone. Moreover Davis defines hatred as “crimes that manifest prejudice based on certain group characteristics”. From all the definition, it can be concluded that hatred is the form of an expression that makes people dislike someone or something.

Hatred is also depicted in hate speech by statement of person, in the same manner said by Walker (www.123helpme.com/view.asp?id=11486) that hate speech includes "any form of expression deemed offensive to any racial, religious, ethnic or national group". Such a feeling, for sure, can only give more troubles and create difficulties for us. Besides, it is absolutely true that everyone must have this feeling whether little or much. The huge hatred feeling will force someone to commit negative conducts.

Furthermore hatred can cause killing. According to Gordon Witkin and Jeannye Thornton, it happened to a couple in United States, a lady killed and cut open a pregnant woman named Theresa Andrews, and she took her baby and claimed it hers. She did the action caused hatred and jealousy to that woman. She can not accept that her husband impregnated that woman.
So when a person possesses a strong feeling of hatred, then he/she will tend to do anything necessary to make the one he/she hates suffer. This is the major target. When he/she obtains his/her intention, then she will find satisfaction.

It has always been hard for anyone to part hatred in his/her life as he/she has been gifted with two different contrast feeling, hate and love. People will do anything needed to make anyone being his target suffer and obtain his/her satisfaction.

Hamlet’s hatred is found in theme of Hamlet’s play that is vengeance. This vengeance does not only have to do with Hamlet himself but is also illustrated in all important characters of the play. All of these characters are faced with the problem of having to avenge their nemesis who had previously hurt their family or their family's name.

From this theme, I can conclude that there is hatred in Hamlet’s play. And because that, why I am interested to analyzing Hamlet.

1.2 Scope of the Study

In analysis the literature especially drama, there are many elements to be discussed. For examples: aspect, theme, plot, setting, and characters. But in this paper, the writer only focused on to the character, especially the hatred of main character Hamlet towards another characters found in this play. This hatred feeling is mirrored in Hamlet’s conduct which is divided into Hamlet’s hatred towards his uncle, Hamlet’s hatred towards his mother, and Hamlet’s hatred towards Ophelia.
1.3 Purpose of the Study

The purposes of the study are as follows:

1. To describe how the main character shows hatred feeling towards his uncle, his mother, and Ophelia.
2. To find out the effect of Hamlet’s hatred feeling.
3. To describe the consequence towards himself.

1.4 Significance of the Study

1. To increase study of literature especially in the play.
2. The writer hopes that the readers can find the important points from the lesson.
3. The writer want extend to the readers that hatred has something to do with moral lesson as it will influence people to do negative conduct.
4. To give a brief explanation of the bad effects that hatred can create in life.
5. To present a brief description to the readers that it is totally wrong to hate others.
6. As reference to the readers who want recitation the problem in this play.

1.5 Method of the Study

The method taken in this analysis is based on library research, to get the source of data. Clayton (2001: XII) defines library research as “A terms which encompasses a number of activities related to the development of the library’s collection, including the determination and coordination of selection policy, assessment of needs of users and potential user, collection use studies, collection evaluation, identification of collection needs, selection of materials, planning of resource sharing, collection maintenance and weeding”. While, Edward (2000:83) defines data analysis is a method in which the investigator examines information source used and materials produced by the person or study group. The source of data is Hamlet. The source of this analysis is depicted in the play “Hamlet”, written by William Shakespeare.

Method of the study that is used in this analysis consists of some steps.

1. Reading story of the play “Hamlet” repeats. Then, the whole contents or main points of the play “Hamlet” should be really understood.
2. Identifying the characters of the play.
3. Collecting the sentence that depicted Hamlet’s hatred.
4. Classification the data depend Hamlet’s hatred.
5. Analyzing the data based on books about Hamlet’s Play.